DATE: January 4, 2017
TO: All Energy Transfer Partnership Employees
FROM: Mackie McCrea, ETE’s Group Chief Operating Officer and Chief Commercial Officer
SUBJECT: Mike Hennigan’s Post Merger Role

When SXL and ETP announced its merger agreement last month, we named a number of the executive team members of the post-closing organization and we expressed the expectation that Mike Hennigan would continue in a key position with the combined organization. Today, we are excited to share that after closing, Mike Hennigan will continue with the combined organization in the role of President, Crude, NGL and Refined Products. In this role, Mike will report to me and have responsibility for ETP’s crude, NGL and refined products business, both domestically and internationally. Mike will assume this new role effective at closing and will continue to work primarily from SXL’s Newtown Square office. Sunoco Pipeline (SPLP) and Sunoco Marketing and Terminals (SPMT) will remain headquartered in PA as well.

Mike brings over three decades of outstanding engineering, commercial and business development experience and executive leadership from his time at SXL and Sunoco, Inc. We could not be more pleased that Mike has agreed to remain with the post-closing ETP organization in such a critical role.

Additional details concerning Mike’s role and his organization will be provided throughout the integration process as decisions are made.

Please remember that while this announcement is significant as it relates to the post-closing ETP organization, both SXL and ETP remain independent entities and will continue to be so until closing. Closing of the merger transaction remains subject to securing approval of ETP’s unitholders and other customary closing conditions.

Please join me and the other executive team members in congratulating Mike on his role with the combined business after closing of the merger transaction.
